CRIMINAL JUSTICE EDUCATORS' MEETING CONTINUES SATURDAY

MISSOULA -

Final sessions of the two-day meeting of the Montana Association of Criminal Justice Educators (MACJE) will be held Saturday (Jan. 5) at the University of Montana.

Saturday's program begins at 9 a.m. in the University Center Montana Rooms.

Richard D. Vandiver (pronounced VAN-da-ver), instructor in sociology at UM and a member of the association, said Saturday's program will include a general business meeting of the MACJE involving standards for both faculty and curricula in criminal justice education programs at colleges and universities in Montana.

"We will also be making recommendations to the Governor's Crime Control Commission regarding internship programs for students majoring in criminal justice education," Vandiver said.

About 15 members of the MACJE are attending the two-day meeting. They represent eight institutions of higher learning in Montana.

Keynote speaker at Friday's sessions was H. T. Tubbs, from the Denver, Colo., regional office of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Tubbs discussed loans for students and LEAA assistance for university programs in criminal justice.
